Willowbank Wildlife Reserves development began in 1974 from a rough block of scrub, broom and blackberry with a beautiful spring fed stream flowing through it.

The Reserve today covers 7 hectares (18 acres) of lush native plantings and waterways. The Reserve is still operated by the original family who created this special place combining native New Zealand wildlife, rare breeds, nature and culture – all within Christchurch city boundary.

New Zealand Conservation Trust is a charitable Trust based at Willowbank to preserve our species. The Trust has been very successful in the breeding of kiwi and is now involved in Operation Nest Egg in partnership with the Department of Conservation, where eggs are removed from the wild, hatched in incubators and reared until the birds are strong enough to protect themselves from the many predators within their natural habitat.

Your help can make a difference by becoming a member of the Trust or making a donation.

'Behind The Scenes Kiwi Breeding Tours' by arrangement
